Art Unit: 2856

1. The amendment filed July 21, 2003 has been entered.
2. Claims 1-8, 11 and 13-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mielke U.S. 3,872,935 in view of Kaczerwaski U.S. 4,611,350.

Mielke et al shows a plastic soil sample liner substantially as claimed but does not show an area of reduced thickness as claimed. However, Kaczerwaski shows that it is known to make flexible liners with an area of reduced thickness to facilitate insertion for a snug fit of the liner. Clearly in Kaczerwaski as seen in Figs. 1-2 and 5-6 the area of reduced thickness 18 extends along at least a portion of the length of the member, i.e. it is not just at a point. Kaczerwaski is considered to be applicable analogous art since dealing with a similar problem of inserting a removable liner. It would have been an obvious expedient to have incorporated such a reduced area into the liner of Mielke to make for snugger liner insertion. The exact dimensions of the liner area portions would have been obvious design expedients suggested by intended use. Those claimed appear to be typical for such liners. Transparent plastic materials for liners would have been obvious to facilitate viewing of the sample and because similar transparent flexible liners are known. It is noted there is no claim limitation requiring the liners to be relatively rigid.

3. Claims 9-10, 12 and 15 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
4. Applicant's arguments filed July 21, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's arguments are believed adequately addressed in the rejection.
